SOMETHING NEW IN LAUNDRY SERVICE

An Ocean Beach branch of Felt's Soft Water Laundry of 2044 India street, San Diego, has been established at 1906 DeFoe street, where a new and saving system in laundry service is now in vogue. Attention is called to the business announcement in another column of a method inaugurated for the saving of twenty per cent on all laundry bills when laundry is taken to the Felt's Ocean Beach branch at 1906 DeFoe street. Popular prices are quoted and satisfactory work is guaranteed.

A well known Beach resident who is an enterprising, wide-awake citizen, is sponsor of the innovation in laundry economy. A saving of twenty per cent is made possible by the elimination of special collection and delivery. For instance, it is stated that if a laundry bill amounts to $2, one-fifth of that sum, 40 cents in cash, is returned to all customers who bring and take away their laundry at the branch office, 1906 DeFoe street.

"BIG ELI" COMING AMONG NEW CONCESSIONS ON OCEAN FRONT

With a new chain of concession booths already constructed on Abbott street, Manager "Bill" Benbough of the O. B. Dance Pavilion, has been busy this week building another row of booths on Newport avenue. In the rear of the concessions, the vacant property will be occupied this summer by a large Ferris wheel, known in outdoor show parlance as a "Big Eli." Manager Benbough states that the "ride" will be thoroughly modern in every particular, being as safe as a hobby-horse while giving all the thrills of being 'way up in the air.

RELIGIOUS TEACHING IN PUBLIC SCHOOLS DECLARED ILLEGAL

According to an opinion rendered this week by Attorney-General Webb to Will C. Wood, State Superintendent of Schools, all religious instruction for school children on regular time is contrary to the State Constitution.

Several clergymen in San Francisco recently petitioned the school authorities in favor of a plan to close the schools an hour earlier two days a week so that teachers might give children religious instruction as parents might direct.

Attorney-General Webb has stated that: "Some parents might not desire this form of instruction in the schools, and the plan therefore would cause unconstitutional discrimination."

JUDGMENT OBTAINED IN RECENT ARSON CASE PROBABLY FRUITLESS

Judgment by stipulation was given last Wednesday in Department No. 4 of Superior Court to Mrs. Martha J. Plummer against Robert J. Walsh and Daniel O'Connell for $1200. The suit grew out of an arson case in Ocean Beach, in which the two defendants were charged with setting fire to a house owned by Mrs. Plummer and occupied by negroes. Walsh was convicted and is now in San Quentin. The case against O'Connell was dismissed and he has left the state.

It is claimed that neither of the defendants has any property with which the judgment may be satisfied.

SPECIAL TESTS FOR ALL OIL PRODUCTS SOLD IN CITY

Councilman Fred A. Heilbron's ordinance regulating the sale of petroleum products in San Diego was resurrected by the city council and adopted with only one dissenting vote early this week.

The ordinance requires municipal tests of gasoline, distillate and kerosene sold in the city. City Manager Rhodes said he thought he could conduct the tests without any additional expense. The tests will be in the hands of the boiler inspector, who works out of the city operating department.

The ordinance provides a penalty of a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than six months for any violation of its provisions. It will take effect 31 days from the date of its passage.

GROWING DEMAND FOR CHEVROLET CARS SHOWS CONFIDENCE

At the recent mid-winter convention of the Chevrolet Company held in Chicago, reports from all over the country showed a greatly increased demand for Chevrolet cars with very encouraging market conditions.

It is stated that the schedule of production of three thousand cars a day by March 1st, will hardly keep pace with the orders for spring delivery.

At the San Diego headquarters of the Campbell Chevrolet company, State at B street, K. W. Stott reports that the demand keeps well ahead of the procession, and it is especially worthy of note that two Chevrolet cars were recently sold by the Campbell sales force without even the usual demonstration—thus showing the confidence of customers in all concerned as well as in the Chevrolet.

FOR AND AGAINST AUTO CAMP GROUNDS IN COLLIER PARK

Residents of Point Loma, headed by Joseph W. Sefton, have entered a protest against a proposed plan to establish the municipal automobile camp in Collier park.

The O. B. chamber of commerce and numerous Ocean Beach property owners have asked that the camp be established in Collier park, believing that it would be a benefit to Ocean Beach.

The council this week took no action either on the petition or the protest, but laid the matter over indefinitely.

"BILL" RABSAHL RUNS O. B. LUMBER COMPANY UNDER NEW REGIME

Announcement is made of a change in the management of the Ocean Beach Lumber Company, H. H. Reid & Son continuing in charge of the hardware, paints and household supplies departments, while W. H. Rabsahl, popularly called "Bill," and favorably known as the efficient bookkeeper there for some time, assumes control of the lumber and building material interests.

Plans are under way for the building of a new office and large warehouses at the site of the present lumber mill on Muir avenue at Ebers street, where a full line of lumber, shingles, laths, cement, wall board, roofing material and building supplies will be carried.

Manager "Bill" Rabsahl states that until the new building is ready for occupancy he will make his office headquarters at the present Newport avenue address, using the same phone number, temporarily. The new call will be announced later. "Bill" most respectfully solicits a continuation of former patronage and guarantees prompt and satisfactory service to all patrons for anything in the way of building material.

BUSINESS BOOMING AT AMERICAN LAUNDRY

Good business ability has been shown by Harry Wing, the enterprising proprietor of the American Laundry on Niagara avenue, in his recent addition to his managerial force of Ed G. Bidinger as general superintendent. With over twenty years' experience in handling laundry work of all kinds, Mr. Bidinger has already devised means and methods of nearly doubling the output of the American Laundry and is busy outlining several innovations for the benefit of their customers. The new method adopted by the American Laundry "keeps kiddies' clothes as bright as a brand new dollar" and particularly appeals to fond parents, for whom the regular solicitor has a personal message. General Manager Bidinger believes in community publicity as a stepping stone to success, with prompt service as a strict watchword.

America's Marvels

NATURAL AND OTHERWISE

By T. T. Maxey

THE FIELD MUSEUM

The exhibits at the World's Fair, Chicago, in 1893, offered an exceptional opportunity for the founding of a museum as an everlasting memorial of this great international affair and to preserve its endless antiquities. To start and further this movement, Marshall Field, Chicago's merchant prince, donated $1,000,000, and the exhibits desired were selected and placed on display in the Art palace on the exposition grounds.

When Mr. Field died in 1906 he left $4,000,000 additional for a building to be erected on a permanent site, and another $4,000,000 to provide for its maintenance. The great, imposing, spacious-halled palace of white Georgia marble—covering eleven acres of ground, said to be the largest marble building in the world, which now stands in Grant park on the lake front in Chicago, the Field Museum of Natural History, is the result.

Inside, the world, it might be said, awaits your inspection. One room holds the exhibits which show the advances made by men of ancient times that led up to the present civilization; another displays Egyptian antiquities without end; a third, bronze and ancient glassware from Rome. Another section contains displays representing the early races of North and South America and the Pacific islands. A highly instructive exhibit is that which shows various birds, animals, fish and reptiles artistically grouped in their natural habitats. One hall is packed with exhibits from China. The habit of growth and structural makeup of many flowers and seeds is shown in an extremely interesting fashion. The display of woods from various parts of the world and the products made from wood is extensive. Numerous examples of meteorites and crystals, and models showing the workings of mines of many kinds, are shown. Ethnological and geological collections from Africa, India, Japan and other far-away lands contain many curious objects.

The entire world was searched and everything which the authorities considered as worthy appears to have been brought to this central headquarters for the public to view and study. The carcass of a monstrous herbivorous dinosaur which roamed the earth centuries ago is perhaps the oldest inhabitant; the skeleton of a monster whale is perhaps the largest single exhibit; the smallest probably is the miniature seed of some wee plant; an Indian medicine wheel, found on a mountain top, surrounded with an air of ceremony, perhaps of sacrifice, too, its use conjectural, certainly is a most peculiar exhibit.

At any rate, the generosity and foresight of a wealthy public-spirited man has made it possible for future generations to "see the world" in his home town—Chicago.

WASHINGTON'S EXPENSE

Based on the expenses for three months in 1789, Washington figured his year's outlay at about $25,000. When Washington became president he was unwilling to receive any money from the public treasury beyond his actual expenses. At the time his household included a secretary, an assistant secretary, three aids and eighteen servants, while a livery of sixteen horses also figured into the yearly cost.

An interpretation of this brief note shows that the band of Colonel Proctor's Fourth Continental artillery apparently took it upon itself to serenade the commander in chief. This old record brings to light that Valley Forge, with all that that name means of privations and suffering, was the setting where was staged what was undoubtedly the first recognition in any public way of Washington's birthday.

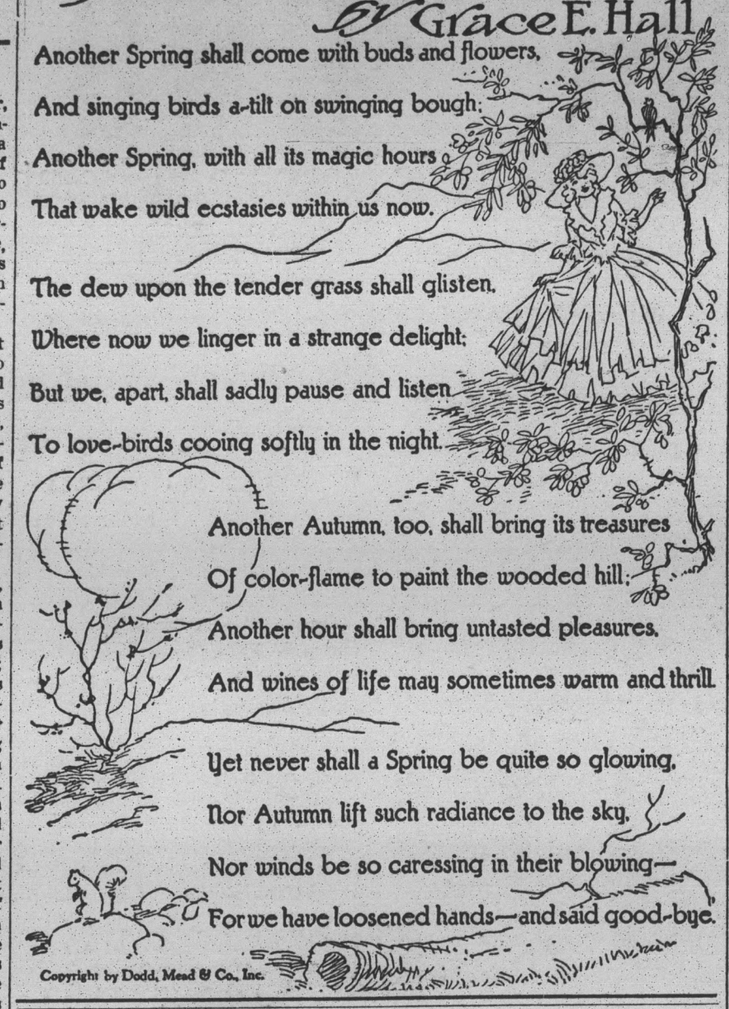
French First to Celebrate.

There is still another record of those Revolutionary times which touches us perhaps most poignantly today. To the French is credit due for the first public celebration of Washington's birthday. It was in February, 1781, that Comte de Rochambeau, with true French spirit, declared a holiday for the French troops who were then located in Connecticut. Washington's birthday fell that year on Sunday, so the Frenche general specified that the following Monday be set aside for the celebration of the birthday of his commander, whom he so highly esteemed.

It was another of the many evidences of the close ties between France and America which existed in Revolutionary times. It was on that memorable occasion that was first laid the foundation of our national holiday.

The Difference

by Grace E. Hall



Another Spring shall come with buds and flowers,
And singing birds a-tilt on swinging bough;
Another Spring, with all its magic hours
That wake wild ecstasies within us now.

The dew upon the tender grass shall glisten,
Where now we linger in a strange delight;
But we, apart, shall sadly pause and listen
To love-birds cooing softly in the night.

Another Autumn, too, shall bring its treasures
Of color-flame to paint the wooded hill;
Another hour shall bring untasted pleasures,
And wines of life may sometimes warm and thrill.

Yet never shall a Spring be quite so glowing,
Nor Autumn lift such radiance to the sky,
Nor winds be so caressing in their blowing—
For we have loosened hands—and said good-bye.

THE DATE OF WASHINGTON'S BIRTH

OLD records—what stories they can tell. Sometimes full of romance, sometimes startling in their disclosures.

It would seem that Washington's birthday, observed for so many years on February 22, was a celebration founded securely on accurate historical facts. Yet buried in the family Bible of Washington's mother and written in her own handwriting is an entry which makes one pause with surprise. There she has clearly recorded the astounding statement that George Washington was born on February 11.

Certainly no one should know more about this important event than Mrs. Washington.

There it is in black and white in her own handwriting:

George Washington, son to Augustine and Mary, his wife, was bore ye 11the of February, 1732, about 10 in the morning, and was baptised the 3d of April following. Mr. Beverley Whiting and Capt. Christopher Brooks, godfathers, and Mrs. Mildred Gregory, godmother.

Family Bibles, especially in those times, were the last word in accuracy, so this statement must be accepted as indisputable.

By the latter part of the Sixteenth century the calendar year had become askew with the astronomical year. It seemed important that a readjustment be made and Pope Gregory XIII, after careful consultation with the learned men of his time, decreed that in 1582 10 days should be dropped and arranged what has since been called the Gregorian calendar. The mandate of the pope was followed that year by Spain, Portugal, Italy and France, but England would have none of it and continued on the basis of the old calendar for another century and a half.

Difference of Eleven Days.

By 1752 in England the discrepancy had mounted up to 11 days, and the disadvantages of two systems of dates was causing great annoyance. It was necessary to date letters going from England or her colonies to France with the days of both systems; for instance, February 11-22. So at last to avoid all this confusion England officially adopted the Gregorian calendar and decreed that 11 days be omitted in the year 1752 between September 3 and September 14.

So for Washington, his birthday in 1753 and all succeeding years fell on February 22.

But there is another record which throws light on what was probably the first public recognition of his birthday. This time the record is in his own handwriting. While commander in chief of the Continental armies, with all his other responsibilities and duties, Washington found time to keep exact records of all his expenses. These expense accounts were several years ago made available by their transferal from the Treasury department to the library of congress where they were placed with the great collection of Washington's papers there.

In one of Washington's daily expense account books there is an entry, under date of February 22, 1778, which reads:

Cash paid the 22nd Inst. to Proctor's band by the G. O.....15s.

The BROWN MOUSE

By HERBERT QUICK

(Copyright by The Bobbs-Merrill Company)

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Jennie Woodruff contemptuously refuses to marry Jim Irwin, young farm hand, because of his financial condition and poor prospects. He is intellectually above his station, and has advanced ideas concerning the possibilities of expert school teaching, for which he is ridiculed by many.

CHAPTER II.—More as a joke than otherwise Jim is selected as teacher of the Woodruff district school.

CHAPTER III.—Jim, in his new position, sets out to make stanch friends of his pupils, especially two boys, Newton Bronson and "Buddy" Simms, the latter the son of a shiftless farmer. Colonel Woodruff, Jennie's father, has little faith in Jim's ideas of improving rural educational methods. He nicknames him the "Brown Mouse," in illustration of an anecdote.

CHAPTER IV.—Jim's conduct of the school, where he endeavors to teach the children the wonders of nature and some of the scientific methods of farming, as well as "book learning," is condemned.

CHAPTER V.—Jennie Woodruff is nominted for the position of county superintendent of schools. The school board grows bitter in its opposition to Jim and his innovations.

CHAPTER VI.—At a public meeting Jim roundly condemns the methods of teaching in the rural schools, and makes no friends thereby.

CHAPTER VII.—A delegation of prominent women condemn Jim's methods of teaching, but he is stoutly defended by his pupils, especially Newton Bronson.

CHAPTER VIII.—Jim has Christmas dinner at Colonel Woodruff's, and listening to him, Jennie begins to do some thinking concerning his ability and his prospects.

dollars and cents in life," said Jennie. "We must have culture."

"Culture," cried Jim, "is the ability to think in terms of life—isn't it?"

"Like Jesse James?" suggested the hired man, who was a careful student of the life of that eminent bandit.

There was a storm of laughter at this sally amidst which Jennie wished she had thought of something like that. Jim joined in the laughter at his own expense, but was clearly suffering from argumentative shock.

"That's the best answer I've had on that point, Pete," he said, after the disturbance had subsided. "But if the James boys and the Youngers had had the sort of culture I'm for, they would have been successful stock men and farmers, instead of train robbers. Take Raymond Simms, for instance. He had all the qualifications of a member of the James gang when he came here. All he needed was a few exasperated associates of his own sort, and a convenient railway with undefended trains running over it. But after a few weeks of real 'culture' under a mighty poor teacher, he's developing into the most enthusiastic farmer I know. That's real culture."

"It's snowing like everything," said Jennie, who faced the window.

"Don't cut your dinner short," said the colonel to Pete, "but I think you'll find the cattle ready to come in out of the storm when you get good and through."

"I think I'll let 'em in now," said Pete, by way of excusing himself. "I expect to put in most of the day from now on getting ready to quit eating. Save some of everything for me, Selma—I'll be right back!"

"All right, Pete," said Selma.

Mrs. Woodruff and Jim's mother went into other parts of the house on research work connected with their converse on domestic economy. The colonel withdrew for an inspection of the live stock on the eve of the threatened blizzard. And Jim was left alone with Jennie in the front parlor.

Scanning him by means of her back hair, Jennie knew that in another moment Jim would lay his hand on her shoulder, or otherwise advance to personal nearness, as he had done the night of his ill-starred speech at the schoolhouse—and she rose in self-defense. Self-defense, however, did not seem to require that he be kept at too great a distance; so she maneuvered him to the sofa, and seated him beside her. Now was the time to line him up.

"It seems good to have you with us today," said she. "We're such old, old friends."

"Yes," repeated Jim, "old friends. . . . We are, aren't we, Jennie?"

He reached over and possessed himself of her hand. She pulled it from him gently, but he paid no attention to the little muscular protest, and examined the hand critically. On the back of the middle finger he pointed out a scar—a very tiny scar.

"Remember How You Got That."

"Do you remember how you got that?" he asked.

Because Jim clung to the hand, their heads were very close together as she joined in the examination.

"Why, I don't believe I do," said she.

"I do," he replied. "We—you and I and Mary Forsythe were playing mumble-peg, and you put your hand on the grass just as I threw the knife—it cut you, and left that scar."

"I remember, now!" said she. "How such things come back over the memory. And did it leave a scar when I pushed you toward the red-hot stove in the schoolhouse one blizzardy day, like this, and you peeled the skin off your wrist where it struck the stove?"

"Look at it," said he, baring his long and bony wrist. "Right there!"

And they were off on the trail that leads back to childhood. They had talked long, and intimately, when the shadows of the early evening crept into the corners of the room. Jennie recalled the time when the tornado narrowly missed the schoolhouse, and frightened everybody in school nearly to death.

"Everybody but you, Jim," Jennie remembered. "You looked out of the window and told the teacher that the twister was going north of us, and would kill somebody else."

"Did I?" asked Jim.

"Yes," said Jennie, "and when the teacher asked us to kneel and thank God, you said, 'Why should we thank God that somebody else is blowed away?' She was greatly shocked."

"I don't see to this day," Jim asserted, "what answer there was to my question."

In the gathering darkness Jim again took Jennie's hand, but this time she deprived him of it.

He was trembling like a leaf. Let it be remembered in his favor that this was the only girl's hand he had ever held.

EVERY BUSINESS MAN'S GREATEST OBLIGATION

By WALTER W. HEAD
President American Bankers Association

We speak reverentially of "Our Country." What do we mean? Are we thinking of the service which we owe to our country, of the love which we bear for it, or are we thinking only of the protection which our country can afford us, only of the benefit which we may derive from it? Are we thinking of what we may do for our country, or of what our country may do for us?

Walter W. Head

Our duty to ourselves and our country requires positive as well as negative action. We must be constructive. As citizens of our country, do we fulfill the obligations incumbent upon us? Do we exercise our right to vote—and when we do, do we always place intelligence, efficiency and patriotism in government ahead of every other consideration?

The message which I wish to emphasize is a simple truth, one easily understood, but one of great importance, perhaps more important today than ever before: We—I, as an individual—must be responsible for our government—my government.

We cannot delegate our responsibility in government to someone else. There is no substitute for individual interest in government and individual responsibility for government.

I have said to bankers that the greatest duty of the banker today is not to loan money, but to loan himself—to the service of his community.

MANY A WAY TO OBTAIN CREDIT

The farmer, who is the initial producer of goods, has more agencies designed to assist in his financing than has any other group, partly as a result of the natural growth of our present financial structure and partly because of the special agencies created by the government during recent years. The list of his credit sources is a surprisingly large one, for he may borrow directly from the savings banks, trust companies, and insurance companies; may use the Federal Farm Loan Banks and the Joint Stock Land Banks; may sell his mortgages through local farm loan mortgage brokers, the larger mortgage companies, and certain investment banking houses; if a cattle raiser, he can discount his paper with cattle loan companies; his marketing is often done through a state or national co-operative marketing association; he has access to the regular commercial banks for short time funds; and of course, participates as any other consumer in the usual retail store credit. Moreover, the Federal Reserve Act has provided broad accommodation for agriculture in its text as originally adopted and in the several amendments since made, and the Agricultural Credits Act authorizes the establishment of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank as a further aid. When one hears the statement made that in our economic system the farmer alone is not provided for, the answer is merely, "It isn't so." Many people are coming to believe, and this includes some of the agricultural bloc in Congress, that the farmer's trouble is not due to his lack of credit but to having had credits granted too easily and in too large amounts.—Journal of the American Bankers Association.
